

Enrico Camerinelli

Chief Analyst and European Director, Supply Chain Council

Independent analyst provides advisory services and applied industry research in the area of supply chain management.

In his current assignment with the Supply Chain Council, Mr. Camerinelli covers the responsibilities of budget control, business development, promotion, membership growth, creation of research and positioning papers, education and advisory engagements with supply chain experts.

Mr. Camerinelli has previously held the position of VP for Enterprise Applications at META Group- an industry research analyst company.

He also covered the position of pre-sales marketing manager at J.D. Edwards- at the time one of the top five ERP vendors- and before that he worked in the industry as supply chain and plant manager for multinational discrete manufacturers and automotive tier one suppliers.

Mr. Camerinelli received a degree in Electronic Engineering from Universita' La Sapienza in Rome. He has been a featured speaker over the past several years at conferences sponsored by the Institute for International Research, Extended Retail Solutions, Marcus Evans, World Free Zones, World Trade Group, Business International, The Awareness Group, and various Universities.

He also contributes editorial content to various publications including Financial Director Europe, Supply Chain Europe, CFO Europe, Information Weeks, and other specialized magazines.

Italian, English , and Spanish are all spoken fluently.

Enrico can be reached at enrico.camerinelli@gmail.com